IIAS EUROMENA 2022

Joint Conference on Next Generation Governance and Young Global Public Administration

CALL FOR PAPERS

Rome, Italy
June 27-July 1
The latest studies in the literature show a strong connection between Islamic finance and the public and social sector (Biancone & Radwan, 2019). Indeed, Islamic finance includes several impact tools as zakat (obligatory charity), sadaqah (voluntary charity), and waqf (perpetual endowment) (Uluyol, 2021).

These financial instruments have participated in developing public social facilities and services in the past by facilitating governments on the one hand and citizens on the other by providing them with new services and development opportunities (Brescia et al., 2021). In addition to social connections, the practice also requires new financial instruments that can support the sustainable growth of nations. Based on these initial premises, we are looking for contributions addressing the following research questions (and not limited to):

- Are there innovative social finance tools in the Islamic finance sector?
- How can Islamic finance drain resources for sustainable social development?
- How can the traditional and Islamic financial system dialogue on sustainable social development?
- Why can Islamic finance be considered impact finance? What new evidence?

Expected contributions:
Papers and presentations.
